Walt's Notes

I was asked on Sunday if God was mad at us. It's a fair question considering all that is going on in the world. And like I said Sunday, He isn't mad at us. But He may be disappointed in us and many of the poor decisions that we have made as a people. Do understand that the problems facing us are not retribution, but just like any parent would do, God does often let us face the consequences of our poor choices. Many of the problems we face could have been avoided with proper management and the humility to listen to those sources warning us of our actions. Hopefully we will learn from our mistakes.

As we enter the month of September, let us stand together prayerfully, asking God to forgive our hubris and provide us with the ears to hear the wisdom that He speaks into us. Let us pray for the salvation of the victims and stand together in grief for those that we have lost.

God bless you all. Rev Walt
